

"The creation of something new is not accomplished by the intellect but by the play instinct." – Carl Jung

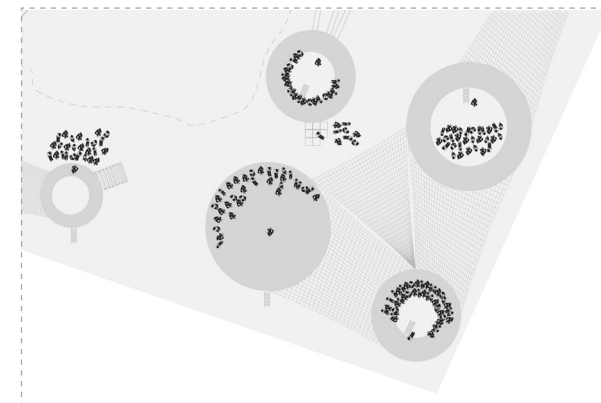

Play

A wide variety of flexible spaces encourages freedom of movement and expression. The children will never run out of new games to invent and play in such a space

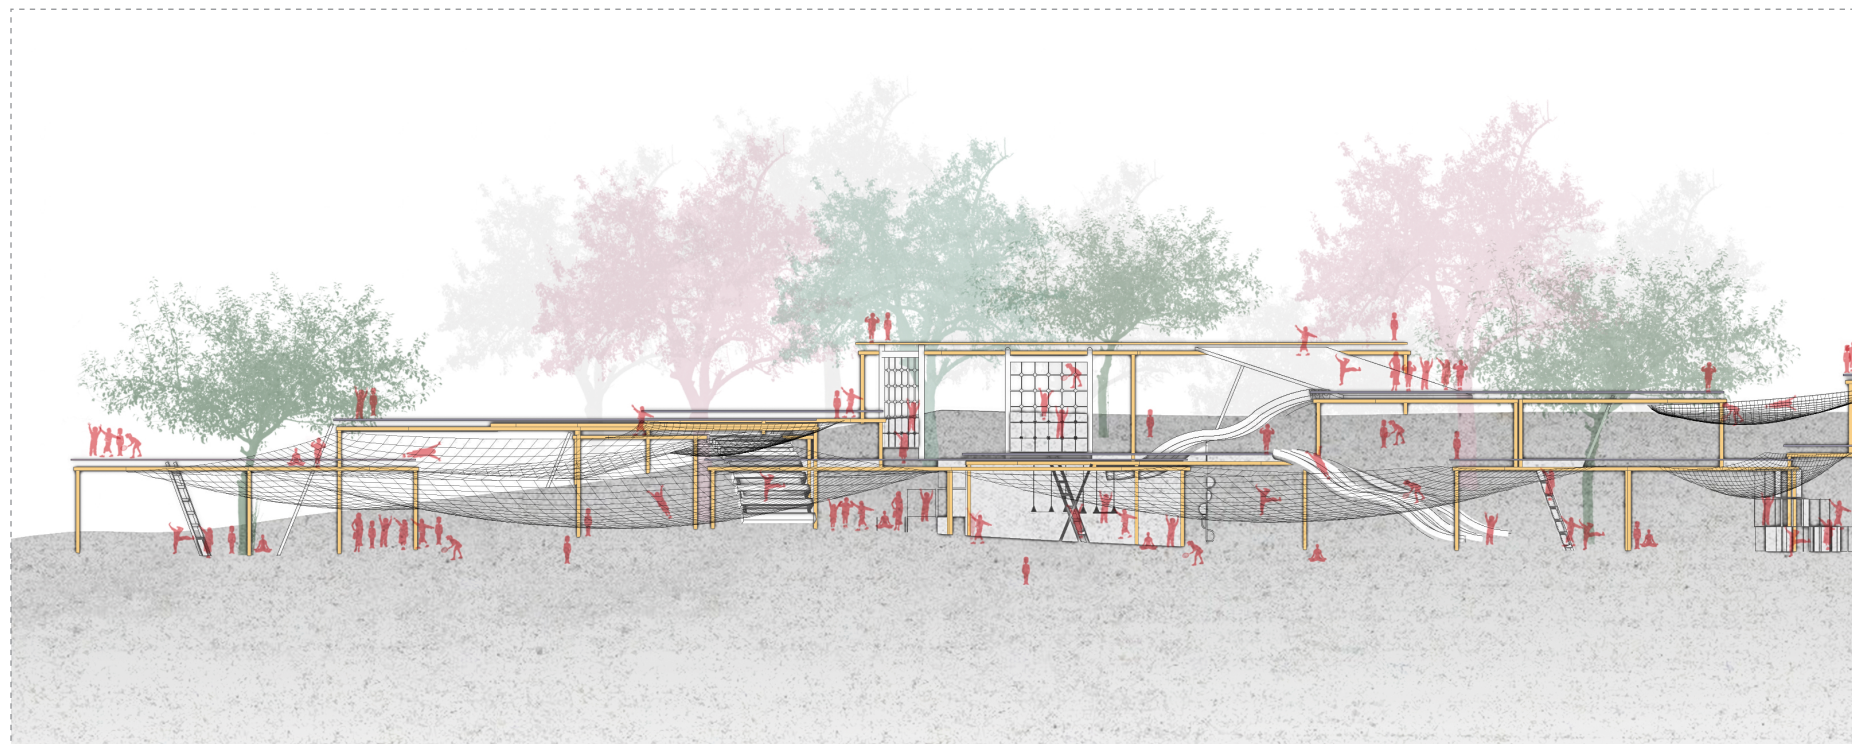

Gather

Groups of various sizes may gather to witness activities on the field, etc. Shaded spaces under the platforms may you used during harsh climatic conditions.

Teach

Groups of various sizes may gather to witness activities on the field, etc. Shaded spaces under the platforms may you used during harsh climatic conditions.

Peponi

EcoMoyo Educational Centre, Dzunguni, Kenya

Life is in a constant state of change. Our surroundings have a tough time keeping up with us humans, morphing and evolving every minute of the day. So what if we let us dictate our surroundings on how to behave, how to adjust to our dynamism. Wooden platforms on metal supports adorn the playground with canvas and rope nets spread out between them. Various play equipment like ladders, slides swings peep out of these structures.

The space is almost like a showman; versatile in his ways, adapting to what is asked from him changing with the hours of the day.